Field Study Report

This report summarises a two-week field study of study habits. The left column describes the method; the right column lists the main observations.

Method

Students kept a daily log of study sessions, recording start time, duration and location. Logs were collected every evening and checked for gaps. Twelve students took part, all from the same first-year statistics course. Sessions shorter than ten minutes were recorded but excluded from totals.

Observations

Most sessions happened after 8 pm. Library sessions were longer than sessions at home. Group sessions were rare in the first week and more common before the quiz. Three students stopped logging after day nine, so their second week is incomplete.

Session summary

Location	Sessions	Median minutes
Library	41	52
Home	96	31
Cafe	12	24
Other	7	18

Follow-up actions

- Repeat the study in week 6
  - use the same twelve students
  - add a sleep column to the log
- Share results with the course team
  - short summary, no individual data

All data stays on the course drive.
